Where can I find sacramental records?

The sacramental records of the Diocese of Brooklyn have not been centralized. This means that you must contact the appropriate parish to obtain a sacramental record, supplying them with the name and date you want them to check. To contact the appropriate parish you will need to determine their address during the time period you are interested in.

What records do parishes have?

Canon law requires every parish to permanently keep records of baptism, confirmation and marriage. Many parishes retain records of first communion, but not all, since it is not required by canon law. While some parishes kept records of sick calls and funerals, this was not always the case.

What information can I find in these records?

1. Baptismal records contain the following information: the name of the person being baptized, his or her date of birth, date of baptism, parents' names, sponsors, and priest officiating.
2. First Communion records list the name of the communicant and the date. 3. Confirmation records list the date, the name of the person being confirmed, the sponsor, and the presiding bishop.
4. Marriage records list the bride and groom, date of wedding, witnesses, and priest officiating.

I don't know where my ancestor lived in Brooklyn. What should I do?

To determine a place of residence, I suggest that you try the following:

1. Search the Vital records (birth, marriage, death) at the NYC Municipal Archives (<http://www.nyc.gov/html/records/html/vitalrecords/home.shtml>)
2. Search the Brooklyn City Directories found at the Municipal Archives or the Public Library.
3. Search for census records at the National Archives Regional Office (www.archives.gov).
4. These records can also be searched at the nearest Mormon Family History Center (www.familysearch.org)

From the above sources you should be able to determine where the individuals lived at the time you are researching. If you need more help in determining the appropriate parish, contact us.

What Parish did my ancestors live in?

During the 1800's and 1900's two types of parishes were erected: national parishes and territorial parishes. National parishes were founded for Catholics of a specific nationality: e.g., German, Italian, Polish, Lithuanian, Spanish-speaking. Territorial parishes were the predominant type, covering a specific geographical area. Irish Catholics and others without a specific national church would have attended the territorial parish whose boundaries they lived within. During the twentieth century, parishes were specifically founded for African-Americans. Rather than founding parishes for new ethnic groups, parishes offer Mass in their language (some parishes have Mass in five languages!). Unless otherwise noted, the parishes listed below were territorial parishes.

Where can I find Orphanage Records?

The Diocesan Archives does not possess any orphanage records. Childcare institutions still in operation are St. Vincent Home (founded 1869), Guardian Angel Home (1899), and St. John's Home (founded 1868 in Brooklyn, moved to Rockaway Beach in 1937). For St. John's see www.stjohnsresidence.org, for St. Vincent's see www.svs.org, and for Guardian Angel see www.mercyfirst.com.

Orphanages were run mainly by women's religious communities. Some parishes had their own orphanages, while many convents included accommodations for a dozen or so orphans. For many years, the Sisters of St. Dominic were active in German parishes, so German-American genealogists should contact that community's archive. Other communities active in this field were the Sisters of Charity, Sisters of St. Joseph, Sisters of Mercy and the Franciscan Brothers of Brooklyn. For further information please contact their community archives:

How do I Contact Other Diocesan Archives?

Not every diocesan archives has a website, but the best way to find out is to check the diocesan website first. A good way to find diocesan websites is by going to the website of the United States

Conference of Catholic Bishops (www.nccbuscc.org).
